

STOCKMANSHIP SCHOOL

Featuring Dawn Hnatow

October 5-8, 2023

Cottonwood Guest Ranch

O'Neil Basin, Wells, NV

Sponsored by:

50% Hands-on and 50% classroom learning that helps achieve great control over herds to improve and protect riparian areas, better utilize upland feed, improve stock health and reduce ranch costs

Instructor
Dawn Hnatow

Dawn Hnatow, owner and founder of Cattle Up Stockmanship, was born into a ranching family in Canada. She has worked with livestock her entire life and spent numerous years under the mentorship of Bud Williams. Their many years together forever changed the trajectory of her life and she now spends her time passing on the wealth of knowledge she gained during those countless experiences.

Dawn will share proven methods and approaches to use while working with livestock. Learn how to move and work with cattle efficiently, minimizing their anxiety and maximizing their cooperation. Dawn will be available to answer questions, to share her ideas on livestock handling, and to share real life scenarios that shed light on the importance and the economics of low stress livestock handling.

Featuring assistant teachers and Stockmanship coaches: Dave Voth, Bret Venable, and Roger Ingram.

Participants can receive free stockmanship follow-up help by phone or email while implementing these practices when they return home.

Topics to Be Covered

- Stockmanship: conventional vs. low stress
- Economic benefits of stockmanship
- Stockmanship fundamentals: mindset, attitude, working with and preparing animals, principles, techniques
